

Soluții de securizare a sistemului informatic

Security Solutions for Informatics Systems

Ionuț-Cătălin GEANĂ

Faculty of Electronics, Telecommunications and Information Technology
University POLITEHNICA of Bucharest catalin10q@yahoo.com

Abstract

A computer virus is a destructive program designed to infect computer systems by multiplying (like a biological virus). The virus consists of a sequence of code attached to a file (usually executable) that is activated when the file is executed. This article presents a classification of computer viruses and the main methods of counteracting the effects of malware applications.

Index terms: virus, spyware, security, malware

References

- [1] A. Bacivarov, C. Ciuchi, G. Petrică, “Servicii Internet”, Editura Matrix Rom, București, 2011, ISBN 978-973-755-743-8.
- [2] S.G. Boboc, “Controlul securității sistemelor informatice”, 2007.
- [3] Al. Bălcescu, “Securitatea sistemelor informaționale”, Universitatea Tehnică a Republicii Moldova, 2009.
- [4] I.C. Mihai, “Securitatea Informațiilor”, Editura Sitech, 2012.
- [5] S.E. Popa, “Securitatea sistemelor informatice”, 2004.
- [6] A. Tanenbaum, “Rețele de calculatoare”, ediția a IV-a, Editura Byblos, 2003.
- [7] I.C. Mihai, “Securitatea sistemului informatic”, Editura Dunărea de Jos, 2007, ISBN 978-973-627-369-8.
- [8] R. Sailer, E. Valdez, T. Jaeger, R. Perez, L. Doorn, J. Griffin and S. Berger, “Secure Hypervisor Approach to Trusted Virtualized Systems”, IBM, 2005.
- [9] Y. Xiao, B. Sun, H. H. Chen, S. Guizani and R. Wang, “Performance Analysis of Advanced Encryption Standard (AES)”, Globecom'06 Network Security Systems Symposium, San Francisco, USA, 27 Nov. – 1 Dec. 2006.